International Association of Women Police Position on Discrimination, Harassment and Victimization

The International Association of Women Police (I.A.W.P.) is clear that women working within policing should be treated with dignity, recognized for their contributions, and not be subject to any form of discrimination, harassment or victimization.

We have, and will continue to work with police organizations to promote gender and broader diversity awareness to ensure such organizations are a safe place for women to work, and that they are representative of the communities they serve thereby being an attractive career choice for women.

Our vision is a world where police reflect the diversity of the communities they serve and where human rights are protected. Our mission is to strengthen and raise the capacity of women in policing internationally and we are guided by values that urge every member to embrace diversity, to be open, honest, and fair, to listen to others, to operate professionally, and to improve through change.
